

Introduction to the Business Readiness Checklist

As a business evolves, it will have an increasing need for experienced stewardship and strategic direction; with a clear vision for the future and a plan to make it happen. For company founders/owners, that means building a business that thrives without you.

The most valuable and enduring businesses operate without the owner's involvement, not because of it. The optimum time for a founder/owner to remove themselves from a hands-on role is typically well before the need becomes grossly apparent.

Decipher Group is a leading business partner to organisations in the delivery of people focussed strategies, advice, development and support. We're sharing important insights and advice to help set your business on the right path to success.

A six step transition

Managing the transition from founder/owner-operator control to welcoming a Chief Executive (CE) or General Manager (GM) is not without its challenges. While there is no one right way to manage the change, we can learn from the experiences of others and apply some basic principles to ensure a successful outcome.
